(A) Policy statement

The University of Toledo is committed to maintaining instructional continuity while prioritizing the safety and well-being of students, faculty, and staff during periods of inclement weather or other emergencies that affect campus operations.

When the university determines that campus operations should be suspended or limited due to hazardous weather or other emergency conditions, in-person classes may transition to remote instruction when feasible. Faculty members scheduled to teach during such periods are expected to engage their classes in remote learning through synchronous or asynchronous instructional methods, as appropriate.

(B) Purpose of policy

The purpose of this policy is to establish expectations for instructional continuity during periods when in-person classes are suspended or delayed due to inclement weather or other emergency conditions. This policy ensures that academic activities continue with minimal disruption while maintaining flexibility for instructors and students when circumstances require adjustments.

(C) Scope

This policy applies to all University of Toledo campuses

(D) Procedure

Please see procedure: Remote teaching during inclement weather or emergency campus closure
