Biographical / Historical

Dr. Howard Madigan was born on March 31, 1921 in Washington, D.C. and passed away November 7, 2015 at age 94. He attended Georgetown University for both his undergraduate and for his medical degree which he received in 1942 and 1945, respectively. A few years later he returned to Georgetown University to get his graduate education in surgery after running a private practice and serving on the faculty at Georgetown from 1952 to 1964. Due to his interests in Medical Education he came to Toledo to become the first Director of Medical Education at St. Vincent Hospital and Medical Center and in 1969 he established the Northwest Ohio Institute for Continuing Education. In 1970, with the opening of the Medical College of Ohio, Dr. Madigan became the Associate Dean for Continuing Education, a position he held until his retirement in 1987.
