Biographical / Historical

In 1918, seventeen new public campaigns to raise funds for the war effort began in Toledo. Confusion arose about which of the agencies the public should contribute to, since there were already several charities soliciting funds. Some Toledoans met to solve the problem. They proposed a "war chest," combining fund drives into one annual donation. The desire to reduce negative responses to solicitations overcame the existing agencies' concerns about being undercut in their authority and losing funds for their particular organizations. The United Appeal began on May 14, 1918, as a war chest.

In 1920, after the war, the chest was retained for local agencies; its name was changed to the Toledo Community Chest. To eliminate duplication of services, volunteers from agencies formed the Council of Social Agencies. Agencies included the Boys' Club, Toledo Day Nursery, and the YMCA, for example. War related charities revived during World War II and the Korean War.

In 1960, the fund raising portion of the chest was named "United Appeal," and, in 1962, the fund drive became the "Crusade of Mercy." The Stranahan Memorial Community Services Building was constructed to house chest offices; the building was ready to occupy in 1973.

Today the United Way of Greater Toledo supports seventy human service agencies in Lucas, Ottawa, Wood, and eastern Fulton Counties. Its mission is to increase the capacity of people working together to care for one another.

Scope and Contents

The scrapbook collection's clippings include updates of fund drives, explanations of the work of the United Way and its agencies, profiles of individuals benefiting from the agencies that receive funding, as well as changes in names and buildings throughout the years 1941 to 1983. There is also miscellaneous material including fund drive literature and publicity, which was not included in a scrapbook.
