SEVERAL WAYS TO LEARN AND EARN COLLEGE CREDIT

CHOOSE THE METHOD THAT SUITS YOU AND YOUR SCHEDULE BEST

Taking into consideration your personal learning style, UT offers several methods of instruction, using online, in-person and blended formats. UT’s CCP program also features a number of general education courses that are Ohio Transfer Module-compliant, which means credits for those courses will transfer to any Ohio public college or university.

IN-PERSON, ON-CAMPUS

- At UT – You attend classes on UT’s campus with fellow UT students and learn from UT faculty, providing the most comprehensive college experience.
- At high school – Some CCP classes are taught at local high schools by certified and UT-approved high school teachers. You participate in lectures, class discussions, assignments and tests without leaving your high school campus.

100 PERCENT ONLINE

UT offers two types of online courses that allow scheduling flexibility and can be accessed from home, school or anywhere you have computer access.

- Anytime, anywhere (asynchronous) - You can access courses at any time in any place. All work takes place in an online environment; there is no in-person classroom time. This method allows the most convenience and flexibility for challenging schedules.
- Specific day and time (synchronous) - These online classes meet in real time for one hour at a specific time on a specific day each week. The balance of the course consists of online activities, including videos and reading assignments, threaded discussions, written assignments and group projects. This method provides live interaction with the convenience of online learning.

BLENDED

Also known as a flipped classroom, this method combines the best of both in-class and online instruction. You complete much of your reading and learning using online technology, such as watching videos and engaging in class message boards. There also are set times to meet your classmates and instructors in person, on campus, for discussions and group projects.
