Let’s pretend that instead of this text I provided a figure of myself smoking a most excellent cigar. As long as we’re pretending, let’s assume that figure shows that I have a really big smile on my face.

OK, the truth is that I wanted to provide an example of a figure to contrast the text in the figure’s caption to the text entered as a entry in the List of Figures. This difference is controlled through the \caption{} command. Appendix B of “Read Me First (v12).pdf” provides a primer for this issue.
