Finance at UT

Finance is the management of money, banking, investments and credit. Finance majors gain an understanding of how to acquire, manage and invest corporate funds. They also study financial institutions, financial markets, security analysis and investments.

UT's finance program offers specific study options in corporate finance, investment management, financial institutions and financial services. There is a strong, active chapter of the Student Financial Management Association at UT.

Students can gain real-world experience through numerous internship opportunities that often lead to full-time positions. This lets students work with accomplished professionals in the finance field while earning college credit and money. In classes, finance students will meet and learn from successful practitioners in the business community and establish professional relationships with them.

What to expect when you graduate

Rapid changes are taking place in local and international financial markets and institutions, creating a need for professional providers of financial services. Upon graduation, your career can take many paths, but most finance majors find jobs in the finance departments of firms; with banks, mutual funds, and other kinds of financial institutions; or in government or some kind of charitable organization.
