Comments/Notes:

Please note that the full title of the proposed graduate certificate is "Certificate in Advanced Intervention for Fluency Disorders."

Rationale:

Stuttering is a complex disorder of speech fluency that involves behavioral, psychological, and neurological components. Few speech-language pathologists are well trained to provide services to people with fluency disorders such as stuttering, and no advanced graduate training programs in fluency disorders exist in the state of Ohio. The proposed Certificate in Advanced Intervention for Fluency Disorders provides students in the Speech-Language Pathology Master's program with the opportunity to obtain this advanced training by completing at least 15 credits of coursework as described in the attached certificate proposal.
