CURRENT SOCIAL WORK PROGRAM CURRICULUM

General Description

Considering the strong focus on social and economic justice of the program's mission, goals and objectives, the MSW program is based in an Advanced Generalist framework. Students take foundation courses during the first foundation year of the program. In the second, advanced, year of the program, students take advanced generalist course work as well as course work in a specialization area they choose. Specialization areas are Mental Health, and Child and Family.

Students take course work in each of the curriculum areas of social work: practice, policy, human behavior in the social environment, research and field experience. Each of the curriculum areas are offered in both the foundation year and the advanced curriculum year. The advanced year curriculum builds from the foundation provided in the first foundation year. As in the foundation curriculum, content on values and ethics, diversity and populations-at-risk, and social and economic justice are infused in every course throughout the advanced year curriculum. The program views these three areas of content critical to our mission and the mission of the social work profession.

Curriculum Schedules

In completing the program, students are equipped with the advanced skills they need to practice at all system levels, understanding the more complex impacts of the environment in which people live in order to advance social and economic justice.

There are several options for completing the MSW program;

Fulltime regular/foundation standing admission, which requires two years or four full time semesters

Part-time regular/foundation which requires either three or four years

Full time Advanced Standing, which requires one year plus one summer course (to be taken first), and Part-time advanced standing, which requires either two or three years.

It must be noted that the course sequences are designed to promote integration from one course to the next. Thus, foundation coursework (5000 level courses) must be completed prior to the advanced coursework (6000 level courses) and all foundation courses including foundation field placement must be completed prior to taking the advanced field placements.

Advanced Standing Curriculum Schedule

Students applying to the program with a baccalaureate degree in social work from a CSWE accredited program may apply for advanced standing. This recognizes the likelihood that taking the foundation level classes will be repetitive of their undergraduate program. Advanced standing students will be required to take the Advanced Social Work Assessment class and all of the classes listed in the advanced year curriculum.
