Introduction

The collection consists of Dr. Harman's photos, documents, and medical school notebooks.

There are no restrictions on the use of these papers.

Biographical Sketch

Felix C. Harman was born in Versailles, Ohio (Darke County) in 1880. He took a job as a school teacher in Ottoville, Ohio (Putnam County) when he finished high school and approximately one year later he entered the Starling Medical School in Columbus, Ohio.

He married his wife, Mary, in Toledo on February 2, 1919. The wedding took place at the Cathedral Chapel Church on Collingwood Ave. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. J. Dean, pastor of what later became the Cathedral Parish.

Dr. Harman served as Ottoville's physician for about eight or nine years before his death in September, 1925 of tuberculosis. He apparently contracted the disease earlier while employed as a physician at a TB sanatorium in Arizona where he located after graduation from medical school.
