Library Resource Guide

The University of Toledo is a part of OhioLINK, a statewide library and information network linking many university, college, and research libraries in Ohio. The faculty, students and staff at the University of Toledo can access this collective body of information through an easy-to-use online menu at selected computers in Carlson Library. In addition, faculty, staff and students can connect to OhioLINK from off-campus via the World Wide Web.

OhioLINK will provide you with access to:

- 1) OhioLINK Central Catalog which contains over 9.2 million unique titles and is growing daily. This central file shows the holdings of each of the institutions participating in OhioLINK. You search the OhioLINK Central Catalog to locate and borrow books, and to locate journals not owned by The University of Toledo Libraries. Books that are available at other schools may be requested and picked up at any UT Libraries Circulation Desk.
- 2) OhioLINK Research Databases which are online indexes. The indexes currently available are listed below. Here they are listed alphabetically, and on the web they are also grouped into subject categories.
- 3) OhioLINK Digital Media Center which contains non-print data such as satellite images, historic Sanborn maps, art and architecture images, foreign language instructional videos, and physics demonstration videos.
- 4) OhioLINK Electronic Journal Center, a central access point for over 6300 online scholarly journals from select publishers.

HOW TO ACCESS OHIOLINK FROM THE INTERNET:

The web address <http://www.ohiolink.edu> will allow you to access OhioLINK services on the web. Any computer on the UT network or dialed in to UT will have seamless access to the Research Databases. Users connecting from another Internet provider may be prompted for their school, name and UT ID number to access those databases available for off-campus use, or you may need to use the UTMOST catalog and local proxy. More information is available at: <http://library.utoledo.edu/serv/remote.html>.
