

Contents

PREFACE ( Henry H. H. Remak )	11
EDITOR'S PREFACE	14
THE MIDDLE AGES
(From the Beginnings to the Early 16th Century)
1	The Origins and Ancient Poetry of the Magyars . . . . .	17
	The Settlement of the Magyars in Present-day Hungary (17)
	Remains of the Poetry of Ancient Times (18)
2	The Hungarian State and Hungarian Culture in the Middle Ages . . . . .	20
	Organization of the State and the Church (20)
	The Culture of the Court and of the Chivalry (21)
3	Hungarian Literature in the Latin Tongue . . . . .	23
	Legends (23)
	Religious Poetry (24)
	Histories (25)
	Sermons (27)
4	Literature in the Hungarian Tongue	28
	The Earliest Records (28)
	The Poetry of Chivalry (28)
	Legends and Parables (29)
	Translations of the Bible (31)
	Secular Poetry (32)
	The Turkish Conquest (38)
	The Reformation (40)
	Renaissance Literature in Full Bloom (41)
6	Humanism in the Latin Tongue . . . . .	43
	Janus Pannonius (43)
	Early Humanist Historians (46)
	Memoirs of the National Catastrophe (47)
	Sixteenth-century Humanist Historians (48)
7	Humanism and the Reformation in the Hungarian Tongue . . . . .	50
	Prose (50)
	Dramatists of the Reformation (52)
	Gáspár Heltai (53)
	Péter Bornemisza (54)
8	Songs Written in the Hungarian Tongue . . . . .	57
	Poetry for Singing in the 16th Century (57)
	The Verse Propaganda of the Reformation (58)
	History Songs (60)
	Narrative Love Poems (61)
	Lyric Genres (62)
9	Bálint Balassi . . . . .	64
	His Life and Character (64)
	Love and Courage (66)
	Religious Poetry (67)
	The Júlia Cycle (68)
10	The Literature of the Late Renaissance; Mannerism . . . . .	72
	János Rimay (72)
	Albert Szenci Molnár (73)
	Prose Writers (74)
RENAISSANCE LITERATURE
(From the Late 15th to the Early 17th Century)
5	The Hungarian Renaissance . . . . .	37
	The Renaissance Court of Matthias Corvinus (37)

BAROQUE LITERATURE

(From the Early 17th Century to c. 1770)

11 History and Culture in the Baroque Period . . . . .	79
Hungary under Habsburg Rule (79)
The Counter-Reformation and Protestantism (81)
The Baroque Culture of the Nobility (83)
12 Religious Literature . . . . .	85
Péter Pázmány (85)
Baroque Religious Prose (86)
Religious Poetry (87)
13 Miklós Zrínyi . . . . .	89
His Life and Character (89)
The Siege of Sziget (90)
Prose (92)
His Place in Literature (94)
14 Baroque Court Poetry . . . . .	95
István Gyöngyösi (95)
Noble Poets (96)
Rococo Poetry (97)
15 Memoirs . . . . .	99
Mihály Veresmarti (99)
Hungarian Memoirs (100)
Miklós Bethlen (100)
Ferenc Rákóczi (101)
Klemen Mikes (103)
The Impact of the Memoir Literature (104)
16 Popular Baroque Literature . . . . .	106
Popular Poetry (106)
Kuruc Poetry (107)
The Anecdote (109)
College Drama (109)
17 Scholarly Literature . . . . .	111
János Apácai Csere (111)
Miklós Tótfalusi Kis (112)
History of Literature—the Beginnings (113)
Historiography and Topography (113)

THE HUNGARIAN ENLIGHTENMENT AND THE CLASSICIST MOVEMENT

(c. 1770–c. 1820)

18 The Growth of Literary Life . . . . .	117
Historical Background (117)

The Enlightenment and the Cult of the Mother Tongue (118)
Literary Life (119)
Trends in Style (122)
19 The Leading Literary Figures and their Ideas . . . . .	123
György Bessenyei (123)
József Kármán (126)
Ferenc Kazinczy (127)
The Language Reform (129)
Kazinczy's Literary Principles (130)
20 The Narrative in Prose and Verse . . . . .	132
The Beginnings of the Novel (132)
András Dugonics (133)
József Gvadányi (134)
Mihály Fazekas (135)
21 Lyric Poetry in the Age of the Enlightenment . . . . .	137
New Matter and Form (137)
Noble Amateurs of Literature (138)
The Pioneers of the Classical Verse Forms (139)
The Poets of Sentimentalism (140)
The Jacobin Poets (142)
János Batsányi (143)
Sándor Kisfaludy (146)
22 Mihály Csokonai Vitéz . . . . .	149
His Life (149)
The Poet of the Enlightenment (151)
Tempefői (152)
The Rococo Poet (153)
The Mock Epic (156)
His Work (156)
23 Dániel Berzsenyi . . . . .	158
His Life (158)
The Image of Prowess (160)
Amalthus (160)
Steps towards Romanticism (161)
His Language (162)
Influence of his Poetry (162)

THE ROMANTIC LITERATURE OF THE REFORM ERA

(1820 to 1840)

24 Reform and the Romantic Movement . . . . .	167
The Rise of National Consciousness and Romanticism (167)

István Széchenyi (168)
The European Background (169)
The Literary World (170)
Romantic Art (172)
25 The Emergence of Hungarian Drama . . . . .	173
The Theatre in Hungary (173)
József Katona (174)
Bán Bánk (175)
Károly Kisfaludy (177)
The Successors of Katona and Kisfaludy (178)
26 Romantic Poetry . . . . .	180
The Common Voice of Romantic Poetry (180)
Ferenc Kölcsey (182)
Patriotism and Progress (184)
Gergely Czuczor (186)
János Garay (187)
The Poetry of József Bajza (187)
27 Mihály Vörösmarty . . . . .	189
His Life (189)
The Epics (191)
Plays (192)
Csongor and Tünde (193)
Lyric Poems (195)
Patriotism (196)
The Poet of Mankind (197)
28 The Rise of the Novel . . . . .	201
Prose Narrative (201)
András Fáy (201)
Miklós Jósika (202)
Minor Prose Writers (203)
29 The Rise of Literary Criticism and the Study of Literary History . . . . .	206
Kölcsey's Critical Work (206)
József Bajza (207)
Ferenc Toldy (208)
POPULIST LITERATURE (c. 1840–c. 1870)
30 The Populist Movement and Romanticism . . . . .	213
The Populist Era (213)
The Continuity of Romanticism (214)
The Consequences of 1848–49 (216)
Kossuth and the Political World (218)
Cultural Life (220)
Literary Genres (221)
31 Sándor Petőfi . . . . .	222
His Life and Personality (222)
The Poet of the People (223)
The Development of a Populist Programme (224)
Personal and Poetic Crisis (225)
His Political Poetry (226)
His Love Poetry (228)
Descriptive Poetry (229)
His Poetic Language (231)
The Revolutionary (231)
32 János Arany . . . . .	233
His Life (233)
His Early Career (234)
Toldi (235)
The Lyric Poet (237)
The Epic (240)
The Death of Buda (241)
The Ballads (242)
The Final Period (244)
33 The Populist Poets . . . . .	246
Mihály Tompa (246)
Gyula Sárosi (247)
The Poetry of Pál Gyulai (248)
The Imitators of Petőfi (248)
The Imitators of Arany (249)
34 Mór Jókai . . . . .	251
The Novel (251)
His Life (252)
The Short Stories (253)
The Novel of Incident or Anecdote (254)
The Novel of Heroism (255)
The Novel of Personal Confession (256)
The Novel of Adventure (257)
35 The Novel—from Romanticism to Realism . . . . .	259
József Eötvös (259)
His Novels (260)
Zsigmond Kemény (262)
His Novels (264)
The Novel of Pál Gyulai (265)
Minor Novelists (266)
36 Theatre in the Populist Period . . . . .	267
Drama and the Populist Movement (267)
Ede Szigligeti (268)
Stagnation in the Theatre (269)
37 Imre Madách . . . . .	271
His Life (271)

	Madách the Writer (272)		Jenő Komjáthy (322)
	The Tragedy of Man (274)		József Kiss (324)
38	Literary Criticism . . . . . 277		Minor Lyric Poets (325)
	János Erdélyi (277)	45	The Positivist Influence on the History
	Pál Gyulai (278)		of Literature and Criticism . . . . . 327
	Arany the Critic (279)		The History of Literature (327)
	The Essays of Kemény (280)		Jenő Péterfy (328)
	The Essay, and the History of		Ignotus (329)
	Literature (281)		Conclusions (330)
	THE EMERGENCE OF REALISM		YEARS OF THE NYUGAT
	(c. 1870-c. 1905)		(1908-1941)
39	The Period of the Compromise and	46	A Country of Contradictions . . . . . 333
	Realism . . . . . 285		A Cultural Renewal (334)
	The 1867 Compromise (285)		Directions in Art and Literature (336)
	The Towns and the Middle Classes (286)		The Revolutions (337)
	Disillusionment and Realism (287)		The Nyugat and Its Significance (338)
	The Secession (Art Nouveau) (289)	47	Endre Ady . . . . . 339
40	The Novel of Realism . . . . . 290		His Life (339)
	Bildungsroman (290)		The New in Ady's Poetry (340)
	László Arany (290)		The Need for the Whole and Full Life and
	The Novels of Disillusionment (291)		Romanticism (341)
	Lajos Tolnai (292)		On Being Hungarian (342)
	The Novel of the End of the Century		Ady's Symbolic Myths (343)
	(293)		The Revolutionary (344)
41	Kálmán Mikszáth . . . . . 295		Poems on God (345)
	His Life (295)		Human Dignity (346)
	The Populist Short Story (296)		The Defence of Human Integrity (347)
	Irony and the Novella (297)		The Search for a Modern Form of Expression (348)
	The Novels (299)		His Lifework (349)
42	The Heyday of the Short Story . . . 301	48	Zsigmond Móricz . . . . . 350
	István Petelei (301)		His Life (350)
	Elek Gozsdu (302)		The Beginnings of His Career (351)
	The Progress of Social Criticism (303)		His Naturalism (352)
	Sándor Bródy (304)		Symbolism and Lyricism (353)
	Géza Gárdonyi (305)		Critical Realism (355)
	István Tömörkény (307)		Historical Novels (356)
	Zoltán Thury (308)		Human Fate and Autobiography (357)
	Portraitists of the Middle Classes (309)		The Peasant (357)
	Zoltán Ambrus (310)		The Short Stories (358)
	Ferenc Herczeg (311)		His Lifework (359)
43	The Drama of Realism—Its Beginnings 313	49	Mihály Babits . . . . . 360
	Dramatic Trends (313)		His Life (360)
	Gergely Csiky (314)		Decadence and Neo-Classicism (361)
	The Plays of the Short-story Writers (315)		Social Responsibility (363)
44	Lyric Poetry in the Period of Realism 317		The Book of Jonah (365)
	János Vajda (317)		Prose (365)
	Gyula Reviczky (320)		The Translations (366)

50	Dezsdő Kosztolányi . . . . . 367		His Life (413)
	His Life (367)		His Work (414)
	His Poetry (368)		Description and Reflection (416)
	The Short Stories (369)		Representation of Reality (416)
	The Novels (370)		Constructive Poetic Structure (420)
51	The Nyugat Poets . . . . . 373		The Basic Questions of Human Existence (423)
	The Two Opposites (373)		Revolution and Solitude (427)
	Gyula Juhász (373)		A Personal Poet (429)
	Árpád Tóth (375)	57	Poetry . . . . . 430
	Mildn Füst (377)		Interwar Developments (430)
	Other Poets of the Nyugat (378)		Sándor Barta (431)
	Other Trends (379)		Aladár Komját (432)
	Conclusions (380)		Other Socialist Poets (433)
52	The Prose Writers of the Nyugat		Lőrinc Szabó (433)
	Period . . . . . 381		Sándor Weöres (436)
	Margit Kaffka (381)		József Erdélyi (440)
	Gyula Krúdy (383)		Poets of Folk Myth (440)
	Frigyes Karinthy (385)		Urban, Humanistic Trends (441)
	Jenő J. Tersánszky (386)	58	Miklós Radnóti . . . . . 443
	Mildn Füst (387)		His Place (443)
	Minor Prose Writers (388)		His Life (443)
	Ferenc Móra (389)		Pastoral and Expressionist Influences (444)
	The Prose of the Nyugat (390)		The Role of Classicism (445)
53	Drama . . . . . 391		Respect of the Intellect (446)
	Drama and Theatre (391)	59	Fiction 1920-1940 . . . . . 448
	Ferenc Molnár (392)		Lajos Nagy (449)
	Menyhért Lengyel (393)		Béla Illés (450)
	The Plays of Mildn Füst (394)		Communist Emigré Writers (451)
	Dezsdő Szomory (394)		Péter Veres (452)
	Béla Balázs (395)		Pál Szabó (453)
	SOCIALIST IDEAS AND THE		János Kodolányi (454)
	DEVELOPMENT OF MODERN TRENDS		Aron Tamási (454)
	(The Period Between the Two World Wars)		Andor Endre Gelléri (455)
			Károly Pap (456)
54	Literature in the Interwar Years . . . 399		Middle-class Writers (457)
	The New Aspirations (399)		Sándor Márai (458)
	Revolution and Counter-revolution (400)		Endre Illés (458)
	Revolutionary Socialist Groupings (402)		The Emergence of Essayistic Prose (459)
	The Populist Writers (403)	60	László Németh . . . . . 461
	Middle-class Trends (404)		His Life (461)
	The Position of the Arts (405)		Novels (461)
	The Liberation (406)		Plays (463)
55	The Avant-garde: Progress and Indecision 407		Essays (465)
	The Hungarian Avant-garde (407)	61	Gyula Illyés . . . . . 465
	Lajos Kassák (408)		His Life (465)
	The Construction of a New World of Art (409)		Idyll and Revolution (466)
	Dezsdő Szabó (411)		The Intellectual Approach (467)
56	Attila József . . . . . 413		Recent Lyric Poetry (468)

	Prose (469)		Socialist Realism (489)
	The Playwright (470)		László Benjámín (490)
62	Tibor Déry . . . . . 472		István Vas (491)
	His Life (472)		Ferenc Juhász (492)
	Early Work (472)		László Nagy (494)
	Recent Work (474)		István Simon (495)
63	Literary Criticism . . . . . 476		Mihály Váci (496)
	Directions of Literature (476)		János Pilinszky (496)
	János Horváth (477)		Other Poets (497)
	Critics and Scholars (478)		József Lengyel (498)
	Antal Szerb (479)		József Darvas (498)
	The Essayists (479)		Imre Sarkadi (499)
	The Beginnings of Marxist Criticism (480)		Ferenc Sánta (500)
	György Lukács (481)		Other Prose Writers (501)
	József Révai (482)		Recent Developments (503)
			Drama (505)
			Criticism and the History of Literature (506)
			Selected Bibliography 509
CONTEMPORARY LITERATURE—AN OUTLINE 485
	The Socialist Transformation (487)
	Literary Life (488)		