THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT YOUR STUDENT CONDUCT FACT FINDING MEETING

- Your meeting with a conduct officer is your chance to share your experience in an incident.
- Your conduct officer will start by asking a few questions to get to know you better and discuss the conduct process before talking about the incident that brought you to the office.
- All students named in the incident report may be asked to meet with an assigned hearing officer. At the end of your student conduct fact finding meeting, based on the information provided, you may be found responsible or not responsible for violating your housing contract.
- The Student Conduct Fact Finding Meeting will focus on collecting information. Sanctions will be provided at the meeting and again through email.
- If you do not believe you have violated the housing contract, you may choose to appeal. The alleged violation will then be sent to the student conduct hearing board. The conduct hearing board is a group of staff from various departments on campus who will be able to hear the case.
- The process is educational in nature and is not part of the legal system. Sanctions are educational and have specific learning outcomes. If you are not sure about a sanction, ask the conduct officer.
