Community Living & Involvement

As in any community, our residential communities have polices and rules that each resident is expected to follow. These policies and rules are designed to provide a safe, comfortable, orderly and beneficial environment for everyone who lives there. The key is respect for yourself and the members of your community!

UT has zero tolerance for illegal drugs, alcohol abuse and violence. Student actions are subject to the Student Code of Conduct. The University will take swift action to address these violations of law and policy.

We encourage you to get involved in your Residence Hall Council and the Resident Student Association to gain leadership experience and meet new people. These organizations are governing bodies for students living in the residence halls. By participating, students can discuss issues, voice opinions to UT's administration and sponsor many social, cultural, service-oriented and educational activities. These groups are open to all UT students living in the residence halls. Watch for information during the first week of classes about meetings in your residence hall.

Student Property Insurance

Regardless of where you live, it is very important to make sure your personal belongings are insured.

Most renters are not covered by the property owner's insurance; so in the event of fire, theft, lightning strikes, water damage, etc. which are not caused by the property owner, you are responsible for replacing your personal items. If your parents claim you as a dependent, check to see if you are covered under their homeowner's policy. If not, they may be able to purchase a "rider" to cover you as you live away from home.

You also can purchase your own policy; we recommend calling an insurance agent to get quotes. Ask about a policy that provides replacement costs. This may seem to cost you more up-front, but it can be worth the price if disaster strikes, since most insurance companies pay a depreciated value for your possessions.

Furnishings

The furnishings in the residence halls for each student are a twin bed and mattress which measures 36 inches by 80 inches, a desk and chair, chest of drawers and a wardrobe or closet space. All residence halls have furniture that can be lofted or bunked to provide additional space below the bed, except in MacKinnon Hall.
