

Teach Toledo

What is Teach Toledo?

- A collaboration of the University of Toledo and Toledo Public Schools to recruit Toledo's citizens to become teachers—in Toledo and beyond. Currently, teachers with specialization in urban education are in high demand nationally, and teaching is a great profession.
- An initiative to diversify the teaching profession, locally and nationally. Currently, only about 15% of teachers, locally and nationally, identify as people of color.
- An opportunity to learn to be a great teacher for students in urban communities. Current research tells us what teachers need to experience and learn in order to be prepared to be outstanding teachers for urban schools. Teach Toledo is based on this research.

Why you might like Teach Toledo:

- Small classes: 25 student maximum enrollment in community setting (Jones Leadership Academy)
- "2+2" design: Complete an Associate's degree in five semesters, graduate, and choose to continue on with 4-5 semesters of classes on main campus for Bachelor's Degree in Education or another field
- Focused curriculum: courses are integrated to investigate urban education—learn the issues and skills to be a great teacher in urban schools while gaining experience in urban schools
- Tuition scholarship for Associates Degree classes (5 semesters)—save approximately $1300/semester
- Help with filing FAFSA (Free Application for Financial Student Aid) and personalized advising to help determine actual cost for you as a student—those fully eligible for Pell grant might not have any additional personal cost for Associate's degree, but finances depend on individual situations
