

ROSTER OF SPEAKERS

Water in the Courts

Great Lakes Water Conference, November 6, 2020

Nicholas Schroeck, Associate Dean for Experiential Education and Associate Professor, University of Detroit Mercy, Detroit, Michigan. B.A., Elmhurst College; J.D., Wayne State University. Prof. Schroeck directs the Transnational Environmental Law Clinic and teaches other courses including Environmental Law. His scholarship focuses primarily on water law issues in the Great Lakes region.

Patricia Galvao Ferreira, Assistant Professor, University of Windsor Faculty of Law, Windsor, Ontario. B.A., Federal University of Bahia (Brazil); LL.M., Notre Dame University; S.J.D., University of Toronto. Prof. Galvao Ferreira is director of the Transnational Environmental Law and Policy Clinic. Her scholarship focuses primarily on international environmental law.

Noah Hall, Professor, Wayne State University Law School, Detroit, Michigan. B.S., University of Michigan; J.D., University of Michigan. Courses taught by Prof. Hall include Environmental Law and Water Law. An author of books and many articles about water law, he co-wrote an amicus brief in a pending U.S. Supreme Court case regarding apportionment of an interstate aquifer, Mississippi v. Tennessee.

Steph Tai, Professor, University of Wisconsin School of Law, Madison, Wisconsin. S.B., Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Ph.D., Tufts University; J.D., Georgetown University. Courses taught by Prof. Tai include Environmental Law and Administrative Law. A prolific scholar, Prof. Tai wrote an amicus brief that was cited in a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision, County of Maui v. Hawaii Wildlife Fund, 140 S.Ct. 1462 (2020).

Heidi Gorovitz Robertson, Distinguished Professor, Cleveland-Marshall College of Law, Cleveland State University, Cleveland, Ohio. B.A., Tufts University; J.D., University of Wisconsin; LL.M and J.S.D, Columbia University. Courses taught by Prof. Robertson include Environmental Law and Legislation & the Regulatory State. She is the author of numerous articles and book chapters regarding environmental law.

Kenneth Kilbert, Professor and Director of the Legal Institute of the Great Lakes, University of Toledo College of Law, Toledo, Ohio. Courses taught by Prof. Kilbert include Environmental Law and Natural Resources Law. His scholarship focuses primarily on environmental law issues, and his most recent article is Lake Erie Bill of Rights: Stifled by All Three Branches Yet Still Significant, 81 Ohio St. L.J. Online 227 (2020).