

This story provided by the crystal clear memories of Dr. Lancelot C. A. Thompson, retired vice-president for student affairs at The University of Toledo.

In the mid-1960s Kay Ingman was a student president of the Student Union Board, which was at that time a student organization with the responsibility of overseeing the development, management, operation and programming of The University of Toledo Student Union. At this time the Union was still the original structure, which had been built in 1958 and lacked a large multipurpose room for events and special functions. Kay led the charge to obtain funding for the Student Union director, which was Mr. Paul Hannahs. Dr. Thompson recalls that Kay Ingman was in the office of then president Dr. William S. Carlson at least weekly, beating the drum of this much needed Student Union improvement. Only she can tell you how productive those weekly meetings were, but in Dr. Thompson's words "Kay Ingman was responsible for raising the funds appropriated for the construction" and the SU still utilizes the results of her efforts on a daily basis.

On April 24, 1967, the students, once again, met with the University architect to begin planning for the Phase II addition to the Student Union. Sometime prior to 1971 construction was completed on an addition to the original Student Union. The addition added bowling lanes and a rathskeller dining area on the first floor (where Rocky's Lounge is today), and a large multipurpose room on the second floor. Vice President Thompson was so impressed with the effort and success of Kay Ingman that he decided that some recognition was due and he decided the second floor multipurpose room should be named for Kay Ingman. At that time there was not a formal or extensive process for naming spaces or buildings on the University campus, and if there was a process Dr. Thompson abbreviated it and the Ingman Room name has stuck for all the years since.

Quarter System Brochure Available Within Week

A brochure reviewing the new quarter system, to be initiated in the fall, will be available to students through advisers and college offices sometime next week.

Prepared by a joint student-faculty committee, the pamphlet attempts to answer many of the questions students may have about the quarter system.

Conversion of semester-hour credits to quarter-hour credits will be done by a formula. One semester hour will be equal to 1½ quarter hours.

Under the formula, a freshman having completed 30 hours this year will be given credit for 45 quarter hours in the fall.

The winter quarter will run from Jan. 6 to March 21. The spring quarter will be from April 1 to June 13 and the summer quarter from June 17 to Aug. 27.

Under the quarter system, spring break always will come after the winter quarter regardless of when Easter occurs.

Agreement Reached By University,

A strike by maintenance and custodial workers averted Sunday night when an agreement was reached between University officials and representatives of the employees.

The workers, members of Local 1000 of the International Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), scheduled the walkout for 5 a.m. Monday if the University did not submit to their demands.

Demands included union representation in grievances, a checkoff of union dues, a review and correction of wage inequalities and a University-paid Blue Cross-Blue Shield plan.

Basic agreement came in a meeting Sunday afternoon that was held with the assistance of representatives of the Labor-Management-Citizens Committee, a mediation panel made up of community leaders. A meeting of the membership of Local 1000 approved the terms of the settlement Sunday night, ending threats of the strike.

Submit To Trustees

Details of the agreement have yet to be worked out but Willard W. Smith, University vice president-treasurer, said that the pact will be submitted to the Board of Trustees at the earliest possible date.

Both Mr. Smith and Dean Roehrig, negotiating committee chairman for the union, said that the main point of discussion between the two parties had been over the provisions for the Blue Cross-Blue Shield program. Employees requested family coverage under the plan while the University was willing to pay only individual premiums.

In the settlement, it was agreed that the University would provide the individual payments beginning July 1 and that discussion of the family program would be held after Jan. 1, 1969 if some other state university now without this program should start it.

to the committee that in placing these men under a double obligation, the University is asking more than it should.

However, Frank Lauterbur, di- rector of athletics and head foot- ball coach, said: "If the defini- tion of a full-time student is 12 hours, it is my judgment that our athletes should carry a minimum of 12 hours as well."

Mr. Lauterbur said that he realizes that during individual seasons some boys are affected by a possible overload, but he said it is his opinion that this is due to poor discipline rather than an overloaded academic and ath- letic commitment.

Speaking against the proposal, Dr. Noel L. Leathers, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, said that this would "condemn" the student to a fifth year of

s. s. John W. Stoepler, associate professor of law, said that he is not "anti-athlete," but that he could not see why students in other activities should not have the same kind of privilege also.

McCarthy Volunteers

Students interested in travel- ing to Indiana May 4 to work for Sen. Eugene McCarthy in the Indiana Presidential pri- mary should call Ellen Pochay at 425-2519 or leave their names and phone numbers in the mailbox of Dr. Arnold John- son in the mail room in Uni- versity Hall. Transportation to Indiana will be provided if necessary.

Past SUB Head Honored In Name Of Union Room

The multipurpose room in the phase I addition to the Student Union was formally named the Kay Ingman Room in honor of the former presi- dent of the Student Union Board in a brief ribbon-cutting cere- mony Wednesday.

Stephanie Ivancso, vice presi- dent of SUB, assisted by Dan McNamara, president, cut the ribbon.

Paul J. Hannahs, director of the Student Union and principal speaker at the dedication, said the room was named "in honor of her who gave so tirelessly and unselfishly to make her dream a reality."

Miss Ingman, 1966-67 presi- dent of SUB, had much to do with getting the Union addition, which was delayed three years, finally underway.

Mr. Hannahs cited three rea- sons for the delay in the begin- ning of construction: financing, correlation with other planned campus buildings and disagree- ment over some of the facilities recommended by the expansion committee.

Also dedicated Wednesday were the new snack bar and a browsing room, which is sched- uled to be finished before June commencement. The browsing room has been designated as the Graduate Student Association Lounge and will be for the as- sociation's use only.

The new snack bar employs the "scramble" method of serv- ice. Students go to various loca- tions in the snack bar for the different food items. Drinks are in the center of the room with sandwiches, ice cream and other items placed along the walls. The snack bar is largely self- serve.

Construction cost for the addi- tion was approximately $400,000. It was financed entirely by stu- dent fees.

Plans for phase II of the Uni- on expansion have not yet been finalized, according to Robert L. Trotter, University architect. Phase II originally was sched- uled to begin immediately after the completion of phase I.

Deadline Set Wednesday For Outstanding Teachers

Students, alumni and faculty members have only until Wednesday to submit nominations for the annual Outstand- ing Teacher Awards.

Cash awards of $1,000, financed by the Alumni Associa- tion and the University, will be presented to four teachers selected from among the nominees.

"The general response to the awards," said Dr. Jesse R. Long, secretary of the awards committee, "is good, although we would like more participation from the students specifically in order to get a good overall sample of nominees."

The average number of nomi- nations received a year is between 50 and 70, Dr. Long said.

The first awards were given in 1964. In all 16 professors have received the award, 15 of them still teaching at TU. The recipi- ents have been Jose I. Aponte, pharmacy; Dr. Norman Blume, political science; Dr. Robert R. Buell, education; Dr. Robert A. Chipman, electrical engineering; Edward D. Ebert, mathematics; Dr. Ernest W. Gray, English; Dr. Noel L. Leathers, history; George Pankratz, engineering graphics; Dr. Herbert H. Sandberg, educa- tion; Dr. Robert J. Schlembach, pharmacology; Harold C. Shaffer, biology; Dr. Edward R. Sopiartz, economics; Dr. Ada D. Stephens, education; Dr. George M. Taoka, business economics; and Dr. Lan- celot Thompson, chemistry.

The 16th recipient, Dr. Richard L. Titus, is now teaching at the University of Nevada.

The teaching awards committee was formed at the request of the faculty conference committee and the Alumni Association to recog- nize outstanding teaching.

The committee is composed of Alumni Director Edward C. Schmakel, Dr. Long, who is the non-voting secretary, and six faculty members selected from the former winners. The previ- ous year's winners are automa- tically on the selection commit- tee. The other former recipients are elected by secret ballot.

All full-time faculty members who have not previously received an award are eligible for the cash prizes. Winners will be announced at the end of May and honored at commencement, when they will be given a certificate and the check for $1,000.

Nomination forms are available at dean' offices, the information office, Student Union, alumni of- fice and the Library.
