

2018-2019 Winter Intersession – Student FAQs

1. What is Winter Intersession?

Winter Intersession is a special session that begins December 17, 2018 and ends January 11, 2019. Courses are accelerated and may vary in length based on the mode of delivery and instructor.

2. Is Financial Aid available?

The Intersession term is a stand-alone term and generates a separate bill. Winter Intersession payment is due December 7, 2018, 10 days prior to start of the intersession term. For Financial Aid purposes, Winter Intersession will be administered in a manner similar to Summer Term. Winter Intersession is considered a subcomponent of spring semester, therefore disbursement of excess aid will not be made until January 14, 2019 the start of spring classes.

3. What is the cost for a course in Winter Intersession?

Winter Intersession courses are billed at the standard per-credit hour rate appropriate to their level (undergraduate, graduate, etc.), program, and course enrollment.

Registration

4. When and how are the classes taught for Winter Intersession?

The dates of instruction will be selected by the faculty member. Face to face instruction, distance learning based, or a combination of both will be available. Courses offered will range from 1-3 credit hours.

5. Who is eligible to register for Winter Intersession?

Winter Intersession is open to continuing UT students, guest students, students from other colleges and universities, and interested individuals from the community. If you are a guest student, complete the guest student admissions application for Spring 2019 by 5 business days prior to the start of the Winter Intersession.

Eligibility to enroll for the Winter Intersession:

- Continuing UT students must be in good academic standing
- Guest/Visiting students
- All previously enrolled students in good academic standing (those who have not taken a class in the last two years or have attended another college or university since last at UT must reapply as a readmit student)

The following students are NOT eligible to participate in the Winter Intersession:

- Students not in good academic standing
- College Credit Plus student

6. When can I register for Winter Intersession classes?

Registration begins Oct. 17, 2018, the same time that spring 2019 registration opens. Students enroll at the time they are generally eligible to register.

Note:

- Students may opt to audit a course
- Late registration will not be permitted and there will be no wait-listing for this term

Online Registration:

Students may register for classes using any PC with Internet access by accessing the myUT portal. To login to the myUT portal, users enter their UTAD username and password. To activate a UTAD account visit the UTAD Account Management page for instructions. The myUT portal allows students to register for classes and print a bill or class schedule. More information about myUT portal is available.

7. Will Winter Intersession courses count toward my degree?

Winter Intersession courses are regular University courses and count as credit hours. Please consult with your academic advisor to make sure the selected course will count toward your approved Plan of Study.

8. How many courses may I take in the Winter Intersession?

Due to the accelerated nature of the courses, students may take no more than one 3 credit hour course.

9. What if my class is cancelled?

Intersession classes may be canceled due to insufficient enrollment or other unforeseen circumstances. Decisions about which Intersession classes will be offered are made based on the number of registrations (early enrollment helps ensure that classes will have enough students to be offered). Students will be notified by email if their class is canceled. Students who enrolled in a canceled class have the option of enrolling in another class or obtaining a full refund.
