

The University of Toledo Zero Tolerance Statement

The University of Toledo has zero tolerance for violence against members of its community. It is the policy of the university that acts of harassment and violence will not be tolerated. The safety and well-being of our community is the University's foremost concern. To fulfill this policy, the University will work to prevent violence from occurring and will ensure that federal and state laws, as well as University regulations prohibiting violence, are fully enforced. In determining whether conduct constitutes a credible threat or act of violence, the circumstances surrounding the conduct will be considered.

Any act of intimidation, threat of violence, or act of violence committed against other members of the University community on or off campus or at campus sponsored events is prohibited. Any student or student organization found responsible for a violation of this standard may be subject to criminal prosecution as well as discipline up to and including expulsion pursuant to The Student Code of Conduct.

Student Conduct violations, such as those on the following list, may lead to conduct suspension or expulsion from the University once a determination of responsibility has been made. Immediate interim suspension pending a review by the Vice President for Student Affairs (or designee) may occur whenever the respondent is deemed a safety threat to the University Community.
